Spotlight on: Elnaz Namaki Studio

Holland Park-based interior designer Elnaz Namaki is launching a brand new furniture collection, Luuna, at this year's London Design Fair. Beautifying some of the Capital's finest homes since 2012, clients will already be familiar with the brand's fashion-forward flair. The eight-piece collection of mid-century inspired ergonomic and sculptural pieces offers textural loveliness, too, with organic shearing as its core material – cosy and luxe in equal measure. From £1,500 (elnaznamaki.com)

Secretaire style

That back-to-school feeling is a September staple, which is why this month we're looking forward to the UK release of Scribe, a stylish contemporary desk by Italian brand, Alivar. Designed by Giuseppe Bavuso, the desk harks back to simpler, pre-tech times, offering a romantic take on the joy of writing by hand. From its hide-covered top to its integrated secret compartment, its exquisite craftsmanship comes top of the class. From £4,725.50, for enquiries, contact Barbara List: barbara@ulivar.com (ulivar.com)

Her dark materials

The most unexpected collaborations are often the most exciting: Roger Oates Design, renowned makers of rugs and runners in signature stripes, meets Abigail Ahern, the designer best known for her dark and earthy flora and fauna. Ahern's capsule flatweave collection offers a sultry colourway, adding a new depth and tone to the parallel lines – a distinctly moodier palette that's perfect for autumn 2018. £129 per linear metre (020 7351 2288; rogeroates.com)

West meets East

Hotly tipped as ones to watch at this year's London Design Fair, Hi Thanks Bye are a Toronto-based design duo. Stein Wang and Topher Kong focus on the meaning of furniture and interior space in modern living, and will be bringing their debut collection to the Capital this month. Their sculptural powder-coated furniture pieces take inspiration from Canadian landscapes fused with a Chinese aesthetic.
